Day 18 Assignment

Description:

Learning the fundamentals of Node.js, npm package management, and command-line applications by creating simple scripts and using external modules.

This day focused on understanding Node execution, timers, dependencies, and CLI input handling.

Challenge 1 - (File Name – hello-node.js)

Created a basic Node.js script to display system information and print messages repeatedly using timers.

Used global objects, setInterval, and clearInterval to understand core Node.js functionality.

hello-node.js

```js
console.log("Node.js Version:", process.version);
console.log("Current File:", __filename);
console.log("Current Directory:", __dirname);

const intervalId = setInterval(() => {
    console.log("Hello Hemanth, Welcome to Node.js!"); }, 3000);

setTimeout(() => {
    clearInterval(intervalId);
    console.log("Stopped welcome messages after 10 seconds.");

```
PS D:\Wipro\Assignments\Day 18> node .\hello-node.js
Node.js Version: v22.17.1
Current File: D:\Wipro\Assignments\Day 18\hello-node.js
Current Directory: D:\Wipro\Assignments\Day 18

Challenge 2 - (Files – app.js , updation of package.json)

Initialized a Node project, installed external packages, and displayed a stylized colored message using chalk and figlet.

PS D:\Wipro\Assignments\Day 18> npm init -y

Challenge 3 – (Files – greet.js)

Built a command-line Node.js app that accepts user input and displays a greeting with the current date and time.

Used process.argv and an external package to format the output.

greet.js

const name = process.argv[2];

if (!name) {
    console.log("Please provide your name.");
    console.log("Example: node greet.js Hemanth"); } else {
    const now = new Date();
    console.log(`Hello, ${name}! Today is ${now}`);
